Thuanus tells us that in 1571 when the Tartars made an incursion into Poland, a Giant was killed by James Niazabilovius, whose forehead was 24 fingers in breadth, and the other parts of his body of proportionate magnitude; in such a manner that his carcass lying upon the ground reached up to the navel of a middle sized man that stood by it. Hist. Man. V.I. 260